NOTES:

Dandy is a sweet and sensitive boy who is looking for a patient family to help him build confidence at his own pace. He can be a little shy when faced with new people and environments, but with time and understanding, he has the potential to blossom into a wonderful companion. Dandy would benefit from a home that can provide structure, routine, and a predictable environment while he settles in. Giving him time to decompress and acclimate will be key to helping him feel safe and secure. If you're looking for a gentle companion and are willing to let the relationship develop naturally, Dandy may be the perfect match for you.
