NOTES:

Meet Mochi, a handsome boy looking for a cat-savvy adopter who understands that not every cat enjoys endless attention. Mochi can become overstimulated during interactions and will do best with someone who can read his body language, recognize his signals, and know when it's time to give him a break. When his boundaries are respected, Mochi is a rewarding companion with plenty of personality to share. He's looking for a home that appreciates cats for who they are and understands that building a strong relationship means listening to what they have to say. With the right adopter, Mochi has the potential to form a meaningful and lasting bond.
