NOTES:

Meet Otis, an independent guy who's learning the ropes of indoor life after being used to the outdoors. He's looking for a home where he can be the only cat, so he can settle in without the added stress of sharing his space. Otis will need a patient family that can help guide him through the transition, offering structure, enrichment, and appropriate outlets for his natural instincts. With the right support, he has the potential to adjust and find his place as a unique and rewarding companion.
